ACT Local Empowering Rural Australian Girls

A local Canberran is launching an exciting new initiative today to empower rural girls across Australia, and give them an opportunity to realise their leadership potential.

Hannah Wandel founded Country to Canberra to connect young female students from country regions with powerful female politicians and executives based in Canberra.

Kicking off with a nationwide essay competition, the winners will receive a trip to the nation's capital to attend an exclusive breakfast with the high-profile female leaders.

"Taking into account Australia's leadership imbalance and 17.1% gender pay gap,<sup>i</sup> it's clear that girls face more barriers to success," Ms Wandel, said.

"The gender pay gap in places like Western Australia and Queensland is even higher than the national average at 23.9% and 21.0%,<sup>ii</sup> while just 30.5% of federal politicians around Australia are women.<sup>iii</sup>

"Distance, time and financial costs can also isolate rural girls from education and career opportunities. Country to Canberra gives these students a helping hand."

Ms Wandel says Country to Canberra's essay competition aims to bridge the gap between rural areas and Australia's capital, connect girls to inspirational role models, and empower more women to become leaders in their local community.

"We're thrilled to have ACT Chief Minister Katy Gallagher, the Federal Member for Canberra Gai Brodtmann and the highest female executive at the Department of Defence Rebecca Skinner already on board to inspire the girls at the winners' breakfast," Ms Wandel said.

"Over a thousand high schools and colleges from Tasmania, to the Red Centre, to Far North Queensland are being sent information about the essay competition today, in a bid to motivate hundreds of girls across the country to enter.

"The prize, which is open to girls in Year 11, also includes a behind-the-scenes tour of Parliament House and a tour of the National Gallery of Australia. Additionally, the top 15 essays will get published on the Country to Canberra website to showcase the girls' writing talents on a national stage.

"It also promotes Canberra as Australia's exciting political heartland."

Ms Wandel moved to Canberra in 2014 as a Graduate with the Department of Defence. She started Country to Canberra after winning a Great Ydeas Grant from the YWCA of Canberra in April this year.

The grants are awarded to young women with innovative ideas that bring about social change.

“I want this initiative to help raise the profile of women’s empowerment in regional and remote communities,” Ms Wandel said.

“I strongly encourage all teachers, sports coaches, politicians and community leaders to invest in our female leaders of tomorrow, and spread the word about the competition.”

Information about the program and the essay competition can be found on the Country to Canberra website (www.countrytocanberra.com.au), as well as through Twitter and Facebook.

The competition closes on 12 September 2014, and the winners’ breakfast will be held on 03 December 2014 in Canberra.
